LeMond is Back !!

Congratulations to Greg and the ADR/Coors Light Team on a Great Tour de France!

THANKS

Hello! And welcome to another great issue of the Delaware Valley Bicycle Club Newsletter. First off, "we" (that means anyone connected with the production of this great body of work!) would like to thank Greg Fox for all past work (and future?) associated with the newsletter. Much appreciated!

HELP WANTED

"I haven't received my newsletter yet"! If that is a familiar statement for you, maybe you can help do something about it. Production of some recent issues has been delayed because too much burden has been born by too few people. Help is particularly needed in the following areas: writing articles for the cover and layout of special events and current news pages.

Timely production of the newsletter is important for both our ride calendar and our advertisers. We don't want to have ride leaders shy away from the first weekend of the month because of fear that the newsletter won't be out in time for their ride. Advertisers expect a publication to maintain a regular schedule. They need to know that the issue will be out by a certain date.

If you can help contact Frank Havnoonian at 449-6154 or Mike Keating at 891-9098.

September 17th Approaching Fast!

July has been gone only a few days, yet the 13th Annual Brandywine Tour is just a few weeks away. DVBC's merry group of volunteers has already been working on the Tour for several weeks. In response to feedback from riders in past years, we've made some changes that everyone will appreciate.

In the past we've emphasized thoroughly painting the routes so that a map was not needed—even though we provided them. Our maps were created from standard commercial maps. The layout of the roads was fine but the road names should be classified under short fiction! All the rides are being ridden to get the correct (as in what's on the sign on the corner of the road—not what's on the "professional" map) names. As an added feature, mileages at each turn, as well as at major cross roads, food stores, and lunch stops, will be included. Of course we'll still paint the routes so that you don't need a map.

Registration will also be improved. The pre-registration form on page 5 includes a waiver/release form. Pre-registrants will no longer have to wait in line to sign the form. This will greatly speed up check-in.

The last great improvement is the recent repaving of one of the better downhill runs on the 50/100-mile route. Make sure you don't miss the turn at the bottom, though. The uphill is not one you want to climb by mistake.

Come out for a great ride!

—Mike Keating

AN APOLOGY!

I owe an apology to, of all people, Greg LeMond! Greg, I didn't think you could win the greatest race of all. I thought you, hampered by tragic injuries and on a moderately weak team, would not be able to compete at such a world class level. You are not only a champion among champions, but a man with a lot of class.

Congratulations.

—Frank Havnoonian

WET (AND WILD?) WATERMELON TOUR

The first annual Watermelon Tour was a success. Despite the rain that lasted all day, we had 17 riders. Only yours truly did not ride—but I still got almost as wet. The reward was all-you-could-eat, cold, sweet watermelon.

A big thanks to the riders who helped make our ride a success: Mike Brady; Ivan Brown; Bill Brogan; John, Sr., John, Jr., Mike and Eric Miller; Chris Hox; Mike Durkin; Tom, Tommy and Joe Ferris; Carol, Kenny and Carl Smith; Donna and Matthew Hox.

Looking forward to a sunny and dry day next year.

—Hank Hox.

8. Each rider assumes his/her own risk on all time trials and touring rides.
9. Those who ride ahead of the group are on their own ride.
10. Always notify the ride leader before leaving the group.
11. Ride leaders should adhere to the advertised speed of the ride.
12. Ride leaders are not expected to be bike mechanics.

NOTE: In the case of questionable weather or road conditions, the Ride Leader may decide to cancel the event. Call the Ride Leader if in doubt. All Club rides are rated according to degree of difficulty. If you're in doubt about your cycling ability, try out a ride one class below the one you're not sure about and then work your way up. The general public is invited to all events organized and conducted by Delaware Valley Bicycle Club. A program is presented by the Club for bicyclists of all ages, all abilities, and all interests. Fifteen years ago, James Weaver was modifying and repairing musical instruments during his free time between jobs as a French horn player. The equipment and metalworking skills he acquired are now used on bicycles—thus Weaver's roles as a bicycle designer/builder and professional musician have always been intertwined. When he's not rehearsing or performing on the French horn, he's busily constructing bicycles under the marque of Counterpoint Conveyance, with models appropriately named Opus III and Presto.

Weaver built his first bicycle in 1976 when his trusty Raleigh Grand Prix gave out, but didn't try his hand at frame construction again for five years. By that time, he had become an enthusiastic rider, but he was unable to interest his wife, Marlene, in cycling. Efforts to ride together on a conventional tandem proved unsuccessful, as the pair had markedly different pedaling styles. Then the design for the Opus tandem popped into Jim's head.

"The idea came to me totally out of the blue—an empty mind is a great place for things to land," Weaver says. "So I built the first bike out of scrap parts with adjustable fork rake and head angle, and all my initial tests indicated it would work."

The prototype demonstrated the Opus' advantages over a conventional tandem. Both the captain and stoker have an unrestricted view, the stoker can coast independently and pedal at a different cadence than the captain, and the shortened wheelbase makes the bike easier to maneuver and eliminates long cable runs. Weaver started production of his novel tandem in 1983, and patented the design.

Pictured here is the Opus III, the latest version of Weaver's twofer. Although the welded construction is nothing special, the tandem's overall design is elegant. Options include leg supports for quadriplegic and paraplegic stokers, hand cranks, and a scaled-down front boom for a child stoker.

"For me there's no sense in repeating 100-year-old ideas," notes Weaver. "I'd rather build a bike that contributes something new. I understand that people are resistant to the idea of the Opus, but I get such positive feedback from my customers that I don't mind being outside the mainstream." For more information, contact Weaver's exclusive distributor: Angle Lake Cyclery, 20840 Pacific Highway, Seattle, WA 98188; 206-878-7457.

Apollo Revisited: A Diamond for Willie?

With the recent 20th anniversary of Apollo and "The Greatest Touchdown Ever"* I flashed back to July 1969 and recalled vividly the views of the space program held by two fellow canning factory workers.

One man thought it was great because now "The people in Italy will be dancing in the streets saying, 'U.S.A., number 1. U.S.A., number 1.' When Sputnik went up we were singing 'Russia, number 1. Russia, number 1.'"

Willie, on the other hand, was unimpressed. "If they find gold and diamonds on the moon, Willie ain't gonna get no diamonds." A down-to-earth way of saying that the man in the streets reaped no benefits from all the expenditures in space.

Recently I cracked the frame on my bike. I decided to get a new bike as well as having my old frame fixed. I had been at the DVBC meeting where Harry Havnoonian had spoken about frames, so I was aware of the weakening effect of heat on metal joints. The bike I ended up purchasing employs a new technology—gluing the tubes together rather than welding. The glue? It's what holds heat tiles on the space shuttle! I couldn't help but think, "Willie, I think I have a diamond."

The DVBC is a non-profit corporation formed to educate the public as to the safe use of the bicycle through lectures, seminars, planned rides, and other activities promoting the bicycle as an efficient and enjoyable means of exercise, recreation, and transportation.

Non-members are welcome on rides, but are urged to consider their ability and experience when selecting a ride. (See Ride Guidelines.) All rides are subject to cancellation due to weather. If in doubt about the weather or level of difficulty of the ride, please call the ride leader. Though the use of safety equipment, particularly helmets, is strongly urged, the club cannot accept responsibility for accidents or injury while participating in a DVBC event.
